Bio

Julia Nasiek is an Associate in DarrowEverett's Private Client Group, where she handles all aspects of divorce, probate and fiduciary litigation, as well as municipal and civil matters. Julia has been instrumental in managing a diverse caseload, including high-net-worth divorce and probate disputes involving issues ranging from complex child custody and alimony to will contests and beneficiary disputes. She understands the emotional and intricate nature of divorce and fiduciary litigation, prioritizing her clients' well-being as they navigate these challenging issues. She takes the time to listen to her clients' needs and goals, offering tailored legal advice to help them achieve their desired outcomes. This approach allows her to build strong client relationships while maintaining the necessary objectivity to be a vigorous and effective advocate inside and outside the courtroom.

Prior Experience

Before joining the DarrowEverett team, Julia spent time working for a highly regarded Boston-based law firm, where she handled an assorted caseload ranging from civil disputes advocating for sexual abuse victims to complex divorce and custody disputes. Julia also has experience as a law clerk at the same firm, where she assisted clients with complex financial issues, both personal and business-related. She also worked extensively with victims of sexual abuse and their families, supporting them in litigation against institutions such as schools, coaches, and employers.
