Prior Experience

Prior to joining DarrowEverett, Michael was an associate attorney in the Tax department of a large Boston-based firm where he worked in their transactional Tax practice, assisting clients with M&A transactions, REITs, tax compliance, optimizing federal income tax deductions, securities filings, and income tax returns for wealthy individuals, estates, trusts, and private foundations.

While in law school, he was the Senior Note Editor of the William & Mary Bill of Rights Journal (volume 27), served as an Associate Chair of the Honor Council, conducted research for the Center for Legal & Court Technology, interned at the National Center for State Courts, and volunteered at the Community Tax Law Project in Richmond, VA. Prior to law school he spent five years in the healthcare information technology industry, working with hospitals across the U.S. and Canada.

Representative Matters

- Represented an owner/investor in a complex multistate business separation of a real estate company and its subsidiaries which involved financing through multiple lenders, transfers of real estate, as well as all interests in the old and new real estate entities. We not only provided the above-mentioned representation, but also negotiated the agreement that governed the transactions, drafted the documents to facilitate the transfers and changes to corporate governance, performed due diligence and cured title and corporate defects found during the process, coordinated financing and loan modifications work with multiple lenders, and reorganized and streamlined our client's portfolio and holdings.
- On behalf of a New England renewable energy developer, we negotiated and drafted documents for and closed the purchase of a 10MW solar project in Rhode Island. Our work included reviewing, drafting and negotiating site control documents, as well as performing title and lien search due diligence.
- Represented a manufacturing company in the purchase of $8.5 million in Investment Tax Credits arising from New York solar energy projects placed in service during 2024, including negotiation of a tax credit insurance policy and terms of permanent financing for the energy projects.

- Assisted a New England-based solar developer in closing on the sale of a 5 MW renewable energy system to be installed in Cape Cod. In addition to negotiating and closing the sale of the project, the firm cured a variety of title defects, including obtaining tax lien waivers and conveying the landlord's fee interest in the land out of dissolved entities.
- Reviewed, analyzed, negotiated and drafted investment and corporate documents for a solar developer investing in a Massachusetts solar energy project as a tax equity investor.
